as we see it

We've been told that our occasional criticism of some aspect of television is a waste of time and space. "You and the viewers," one reader wrote, "have nothing to say in the matter. The networks and sponsors pay no attention to anyone's likes and dislikes except their own."

Just how wrong that reader was in his thinking was proved when the National Collegiate Athletic Association called off its projected series of "panoramic" football telecasts. The plan was to present bits and pieces of four college football games on some Saturdays instead of one full game.

Writing in TV GUIDE, sports authority Red Smith said, "Almost surely this will be the last season for the plan in its present form. If Federal authorities don't forbid further combinations in restraint of entertainment, public opinion will force drastic changes by next year."

NCAA tried its "panoramic" coverage once. It was pretty bad. Public opinion forced a drastic change even earlier than Smith had predicted, and the plan was called off.

Criticism from Smith and from viewers did mean something. Our part, we admit, was a small one. A publication can be influential only when it accurately reflects the opinions of its readers. But our readers—the Nation's viewers—always have an important voice in determining what kind of television entertainment is to be offered them.

This incident should put to rest any doubts about the influence of the television audience upon the men who are responsible for TV programming.

The sooner viewers realize the extent of their power, the sooner they learn to let the networks and sponsors know what they do and do not want, the better television will be. Cancellation of the "panoramic" coverage plan was a small victory, but one that holds hope for the future.

NEW YORK Bob Stahl reports:

For the first time in months, I Love Lucy has slipped from top place in the national TV ratings. The LUCILLE BALL-DESI ARNAZ show has dropped to second place behind Dragnet. New popularity of the Dragnet theme song is probably responsible . . . JACK WEBB coming East to guest on MILTON BERLE's program Dec. 1.

This one actually happened: In filming an episode of Make Room for Daddy, DANNY THOMAS referred to SIR WINSTON CHURCHILL as a member of the British House of Commons, instead of the usual Member of Parliament. One of his sponsors is a cigaret company, which feared to plug a competing brand on the program.

ABC, ready to battle other networks for Sunday night honors, scheduling a full-hour dramatic series from 8 to 9 o'clock starting Dec. 20. Projected show, as yet untitled, will thus be pitted directly against Toast of the Town and Comedy Hour . . . It looks like LOU COSTELLO's illness may be more serious than originally thought. As a result, the scheduled appearance of ABBOTT & COSTELLO on Comedy Hour Dec. 13 has been cancelled.

U. S. Department of Defense so impressed with "POW," the first play presented in the new U. S. Steel Hour series, that it has obtained kinescopes of the program to show to officers and men who work with GI's returned from Korean prison camps . . . WALLY COX approached for lead in "Wrong-Way Corrigan," movie of the flier who made a wrong turn.

CBS mapping an adult science fiction series, to be based on stories of RAY BRADBURY . . . The Lions Club International will sponsor a half-hour program on ABC Saturday evenings starting about the first of the year. Tentatively titled Opportunity USA, it will be devoted to tales about outstanding youths.

TV audience participation shows are apparently now going bucolic. TENNESSEE ERNIE, folk singer, stars in a new ABC show from Hollywood titled Whole Hog Or None, in which studio contestants vie for such prizes as ham, bacon or a whole hog . . . RUTH PATTERSON, wife of famed illustrator Russell Patterson, wrote the theme song for the new Dr. I.Q. program.

New romance being cooked up for MARION LORNE (Mrs. Gurney) in the Mr. Peepers scripts sounds like a soap opera. When the actor who originally played her husband on the show suffered a heart attack, he was written out of the script for several weeks. Now "Mrs. Gurney" has become a widow and is starting to flirt, on the show, with the superintendent of Mr. Peepers' school.

Original Amateur Hour Nears 1000th Broadcast

Ted Mack: 18 years and 733,000 auditions later the program is still on the air.

IF ALL goes well, Ted Mack and his Original Amateur Hour will soon reach a monumental point in U. S. entertainment history. The occasion: the 1000th broadcast of a show that began way back in 1935.

It wasn't Ted, but that famous old impresario, Major Bowes, who was doing the emceeing when the show began on radio. Based on the Major's stout insistence that the show must at all times be "family" entertainment, the show was a regular on practically every radio in the U. S. within a year after its debut. Its popularity finally did begin to trail off somewhat, but it wasn't until the Major's health failed that it left the air. Significantly, subbing for the ailing Bowes on the final broadcast was Archbishop (now Cardinal) Spellman, a good friend.

When Bowes died in 1946, it seemed that the Original Amateur Hour was finished. But his associates, Ted Mack, who screened most of the talent, and director Lou Goldberg, decided to give it another try, this time via television with Mack taking over as emcee. And the Major's old "family" formula worked again. The show sailed off on another five-year run that terminated only because a network snafu made continuing impractical.

Off the air for a year, with his fans wailing, Ted and his Amateur Hour turned up again early this summer on NBC with intentions of setting off on some new non-stop records. This time there may be trouble from another sector. On at the same time on rival CBS is powerhouse Jackie Gleason.

And therein lies the show's real problem. As one of Ted's aides put it: "This is by no means a great show. We never intended it to be that way. It's a simple little show. We've never deviated from our purpose of giving new talent a chance to get started and we've never tried to be anything more than a show that will appeal to the entire family. But we'll still try to give Gleason a run for it."

For all of that, a glance over the membership rolls of the American Guild of Variety Artists, the entertainers' union, shows that Original Amateur Hour graduates furnish 25% of the total, making the show a big factor in American entertainment.

Though there have been no startlingly big names turned up by the Amateur Hour since its debut on TV, tracing the show back to its halcyon days unearths an impressive roster. Some years ago, a rather feeble musical crew called "The Hoboken Four" appeared. The crew will never go down in history, but a skinny little fellow featured in a minor role with the team will. He was Frank Sinatra. Another lad from New York City who did a pretty good imitation of a ventriloquist, is now pretty famous as straightman and mouthpiece for that irascible Jerry Mahoney. Paul Winchell, of course.

The rolls also include comedians Jack Carter, Frank Fontaine, Dave Barry; dancers Vera Ellen and Ray Malone; actress Sara Berner, actor Stanley "Stash" Clements and opera stars Robert Merrill, Mimi Benzell, Regina Resnik and Lucille Browning.

Recognize the young man on the right? He's Frank Sinatra who appeared with 'The Hoboken Four' on Bowes' program.

According to Ted Mack, the principal reason that the more recent winners have not yet reached stardom is that when they appear on the Amateur Hour, they are almost totally inexperienced. Many years on the road are required before the big time beckons. By this theory we should be hearing from a whole new flock of Amateur Hour grads shortly.

In its day, the Amateur Hour has featured some bad acts along with the good. For those who find marimba players and pomaded tap dancers a depressing experience, the following statistics should bring some cheer. Since its start, the Amateur Hour has auditioned some 733,000 acts out of which some 15,000 have reached the air. Think what we've been spared.

Salary And Expenses

Winning acts on the Amateur Hour are usually sent out with one of the program's touring groups, which play county fairs, theaters and auditoriums. Plus gaining experience, the talent earns an average salary of $150 plus traveling expenses.

Another phase of the show that has come in for its share of unfavorable comment is the excessive number of weird acts that have appeared. Examples: A man who played a bass violin with his feet while playing a harmonica with his mouth; another who made beautiful music on his skull by beating it with mallets; a woman violinist who clacked her false teeth to keep rhythm for the music; a bag puncher in rhythm; a man who made music by beating on a picket fence while chiming in with whistles in his gloves and a harmonica in his coat.

In defense of the weird acts, Ted Mack says, "It helps those people to let off steam. But more important, it helps to break up the rest of the show, mostly singers and instrumentalists. I was all for getting rid of the strange acts, but it seems they are the ones people remember. So we keep them."

Grads Are Faithful

The loyalty of old Amateur Hour graduates is a heartwarming thing to Ted. Most of the older grads who have made good have volunteered their services to boost the show. Ted especially remembers the fine gesture of Regina Resnik who broke up a New England vacation to fly to New York City for one picture as part of a publicity buildup for the show.

The 1000th anniversary is tentatively figured to come early in February. At any rate, this famous old refuge for marimba players looks like a good bet to roll on towards number 2000, powerhouse Gleason or no.

Christine, Phyllis and Dorothy McGuire: La Rosa picked the one on the right.

DOROTHY McGUIRE:

THE GIRL JULIUS La ROSA LOVES

WHEN JULIUS LA ROSA sat in Ed Sullivan's New York apartment a few weeks ago and told reporters that Dorothy McGuire, of the Arthur Godfrey show, was the girl he loved and wanted to marry, it focused public attention like a spotlight on one of the least known members of the Godfrey troupe.

As always, when a member of a trio is mentioned, the country resounded to the question: "Which one is she?" "She," it turned out, was the McGuire sister on the right—pert and pretty, but so much a part of the sister act that people were noticing her individually almost for the first time.

Back in her home town of Miamisburg, O., a community of 7000 people on the outskirts of Dayton, they knew Dorothy as an individual. Friends and neighbors had gathered three summers ago at the First Church of God, which her mother, Mrs. Asa McGuire, served as an ordained minister, to see her marriage to Sergeant John Henry Brown, now serving as an interpreter with Army Intelligence in Korea.

This past summer, when La Rosa was appearing in Cincinnati, he visited Miamisburg, and youngsters of the town swarmed around the popular young singer when he went swimming in the Miamisburg pool, or went off to the tennis courts with Dorothy.

All three girls, Christine (who was known as Ruby), Phyllis and Dorothy, have been known, liked and respected by their Miamisburg neighbors since they sang hymns together in their mother's church. Born in nearby Middletown, O., about 28 miles southwest of Dayton, they came to Miamisburg in 1949. Their father is employed by the American Rolling Mill Co.

A Dayton booking agent, Karl Taylor, is credited with launching the girls on their professional career. He heard them sing hymns and invited them to come to his office if they decided to enter the entertainment field. It wasn't long until Dorothy, Phyllis and Christine took the big step. They were "shy and reserved," qualities that still cling to them, but they were immediately popular.

Sang In Middletown

As tots, they had sung from the stage of the Paramount Theater in Middletown as early as 1940. But for nine months in 1950 and 1951 they toured Army camps for the Army Entertainers Association. They sang over Station WLW and at the Van Cleve Hotel in Dayton.

Then, in August of 1952, with a little money and a lot of courage, they decided to tackle New York.

"We didn't know a soul and we were scared stiff," Phyllis recalls.

They met Barry Wood, then producer for the Kate Smith Hour, who introduced them to Ted Collins. They were signed for eight appearances on the Kate Smith show.

On December 1, 1952, they appeared on Godfrey's Talent Scouts program, won handily, appeared on his other programs, and were promptly invited to become permanent members of the little Godfreys. They went home to Miamisburg for four weeks, then joined Arthur Godfrey and Friends early in January, 1953.

New Records Clicked

The girls made several successful records, including "Hey, Mr. Cottonpicker" and "Tell Us Where The Good Times Are." Gordon Jenkins orchestrated their records.

The romance stories, always plentiful around the Godfrey shows, passed them by. The fan magazines were bubbling about the possibility of romance between Frank Parker and Marion Marlowe and between La Rosa and Lu Ann Simms, mostly because they sang together. But the rumor mills were silent about the McGuire sisters.

For one thing, all three are married —Phyllis, to a Cincinnati television executive; Christine, to John Teeter, associated with Walter Winchell in promotion of the Damon Runyon Cancer Fund, and Dorothy to her Army sergeant.

In Dayton and Miamisburg, Brown was recalled as a boy from Dorothy's home town of Middletown. Now 25, he entered the service at the end of the Second World War and was recalled to duty, as a reservist, in 1951. He was stationed, until a few months ago, in California, then went to Korea.

A year ago, when Teeter and Christine were married, Brown attended the wedding in Miamisburg. But friends said that Dorothy and Brown had been separated "for some time" and that they had discussed divorce.

Dorothy, born on February 13, is 23, as is La Rosa. Christine is 16 months older and Phyllis a year younger. They are of Irish and Cherokee descent on their father's side. Their mother is of German descent. Dorothy is five feet, eight inches tall and has brown hair and brown eyes.

Julius with Lu Ann Simms: TV fan books once tried to link them romantically.

LIKE OZZIE, LIKE SON

FOOTBALL RUNS IN THE NELSON FAMILY

Ozzie: back when he'd die for Dear Old Rutgers.

A LAD by name of David Nelson, 17, five-foot-ten, 170 pounds, is currently winding up the football season as a senior and varsity halfback at Hollywood High School, Hollywood, Calif. This bit of intelligence would be of no particular import except for the fact that David Nelson happens to be not only the son of Ozzie and Harriet Nelson, of ABC-TV's The Adventures of Ozzie and Harriet, but a star in his own right. He plays himself on the same show.

Football, it so happens, is king in the Nelson home. Ozzie was a star quarterback at Rutgers back in 1924-25-26 and later a coach. It pleases him no end that his oldest son has fallen in love with the game, although he tries to be matter-of-fact about it.

"David," Ozzie says, "is going to be a good football player."

"David," Harriet says firmly, "is sensational right now."

"David," Ozzie repeats, "is going to be a good football player. He lacks straight-away speed, but he's a hard runner, a good blocker, and an excellent passer. That's his forte. Passing. He has good control, distance, and is exceptionally cool under fire."

A Few Pounds

David only this year has attained the Hollywood High varsity, having won his letter on the "B" team the two previous years. He picked up 50 pounds during those two years, however, and was able this season to elbow his way into the varsity picture, the goal of all football aspirants.

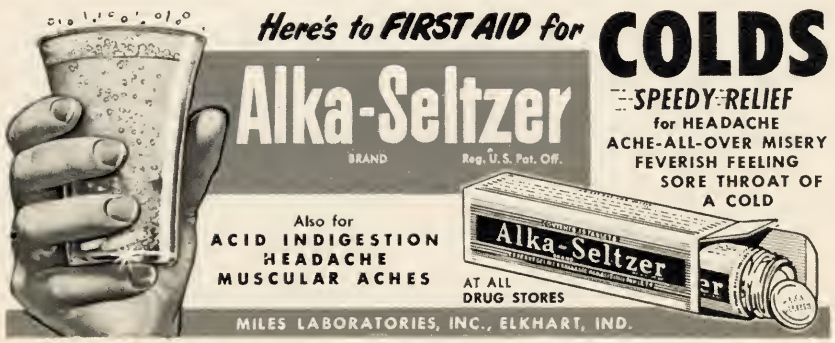
"Actually," Ozzie says, "David is just beginning to find himself. He has come along very fast the past year and has the poise and competitive drive to make him an excellent college prospect."

David's TV activities, while under a strict contractual basis with ABC, nevertheless take second place to both school and football. A sensitive lad, he becomes embarrassed when the Los Angeles sports writers make a big thing of his TV career. He balks at having his picture taken in football uniform at the school itself, not wanting to be singled out from the rest of the squad and has kept his TV work separated from his school life.

Interest In Law

The family shooting schedule has been worked out for the football season so that David's presence is required only on Saturdays. He has taken to acting not only naturally but with an increasing amount of interest, which leads his parents to suspect he might be heading for a theatrical career. "But that again," Ozzie emphasizes, "is entirely up to David. I am, however, urging him strongly to take at least a basic course in law—and as a matter of fact, he wants to go to law school himself." Ozzie, a graduate of Rutgers Law School, is a bug on the subject of compulsory basic legal courses in all schools.

Although David has not yet quite made up his mind about college, he will probably wind up at UCLA, whose football coach, Red Sanders, he admires tremendously. Wherever he goes, however, it will have to be fairly close to home in order to fulfill his long-term contract with ABC.



Red Flannel is smart for fall

By Edith Head

WITH the arrival of fall, interest centers in "warm-up" clothes. And for fall, 1953, the favorite forerunner is RED FLANNEL. Granted that years ago it was used exclusively for underwear and men's shirts, it is now one of the greatest color and fabric notes for the coming season.

The first member of the red flannel family is the petticoat. This can be full and ruffled or it can be sheath-like to wear under slim dresses or suits. It is not only gay but it gives added warmth.

The younger set are taking to red flannel knickers because they will be wonderful for spectator sports as well as windy days. One costume of black wool which has a circular skirt and cardigan-type jacket, uses red flannel knickers along with a red flannel turtleneck shirt.

Shirts, blouses and all types of vests and waists are being made in red flannel. They are particularly smart with dark plaid suits which are often lined in matching red flannel to get a costume look.

In the lounging department, pajamas of red flannel are new, not necessarily for sleeping, but because they are smart enough to be worn for informal hostess wear. For cold weather sleepers the nightshirt has been revived with its matching nightcap.

Besides these, there are a group of red flannel accessories such as mittens, ascots, scarves and belts.

Chicago Dateline

TV's Week: Jack Payne's abrupt exit from WGN-TV's Hi Ladies this week has led some wags to muse whether the show shouldn't be re-titled Goodbye Gentlemen. Jack was the fifth emcee to tackle the job, following such predecessors as Tommy Bartlett, Tom Moore, Dolf Nelson and Frank Sweeney. No. 6 is WGN-TV's mellow tenor, Mike Douglas, former singer with Kay Kyser's band who is fast becoming one of Channel 9's star emcees. He also handles the emcee duties on the station's Friday night Showcase as well as a featured role in DuMont's Music Show beamed from Chicago.

Bannon

Clever gimmick was initiated by Illinois Bell Telephone Company to plug its WNBQ show, Victory At Sea. Four days before the program, the company tags on a brief plug at the end of its recorded weather reports. They figure with an average of 62,000 calls per day (and as many as 270,000 calls on bad weather days), they get some pretty nice (and free) publicity.

Jim Bannon, the romantic interest on WNBQ's Hawkins Falls, found a romantic interest of his own over at the Merchandise Mart. Object of his affections is Channel 5's handy-girl Dorsey Connors. They'll wed Dec. 12.

WBKB's Ed Allen may inherit the Tarzan movie role from Lex Barker if he wins out over five other finalists. If the muscle-man goes to Hollywood, for testing purposes, he plans to film his shows so Chicago's feminine population won't be without its daily exercises while he's gone.

Music a la Mood: Fred Waring and his Pennsylvanians, on their annual concert trek cross-country, stop off in Chicago Dec. 1 for a private concert at the Edgewater Beach Hotel and Dec. 3 for a public recital at the Civic Opera House.

Last of the Quiz Kids: Head Quizzer Joe Kelly and his band of Quiz Kids have solved their last problem on TV, at least for the time being. Now that they're off WBBM-TV, Channel 2's promise of 12 hours per week of network origination is down to zero hours per week.

CBS' Central Division Vice-President Les Atlass had his answer ready last week. Atlass claims the two big stumbling blocks in the way of CBS network originations from Chicago are the hassle between CBS and Zenith Radio Corp. for control of Channel 2, and the necessity of acquiring new studio facilities. The latter must await the FCC ruling on who gets Channel 2. Atlass also added that he's concentrating on building up good local programming.

Kelly

Advance Tips on Shows: WBKB will televise the annual State Street Christmas Day parade from 10 to 11 AM Nov. 21. Headlining the event will be Roy Rogers and Dale Evans on their favorite steeds.

You'll be seeing more of Frazer Thomas and his Petticoat Party. WBBM-TV reports the show has been renewed through March.

WGN-TV is already lining up post-Christmas programs. Beginning Jan. 2, Channel 9 will carry Arky, The Arkansas Woodchopper, a Saturday half-hour kids' show at 11 AM.

SPORTSCAST

by ED PAZDUR

Now here's real talent . . .

WHEN Anheuser-Busch purchased the St. Louis Cardinals last Summer, the brewery decided it needed a new baseball announcer. Harry Carey, the local spieler, was associated with a competitive brand. So, they immediately sought the services of Chicago's suave Bob Elson, whose meticulous care in dress and manners is almost snobbish in nature.

Elson

The brewery recognized Elson's tact. They knew the guy eats, sleeps and lives baseball. They knew his intimate association with athletes has made him the most respected announcer among big league players. By sharing the player's experiences on the road and at home during the season, Elson understood their problems on and off the field. Such a man—reasoned the brewers—could sell beer!

When White Sox pitcher Saul Rogovin slumped last season, he was crucified by local sportscasters. But Elson, instead of blistering the depressed pitcher, sided with Rogovin and defended his slump. "Why kick a guy when he's down," philosophized Elson. "Athletes always give their best—even when losing!"

His urbane, unbiased reporting has paid dividends. Ted Williams, on his return from Korea, Casey Stengel and other great athletes have refused to appear on TV in Chicago—except for Bob Elson exclusively!

Because Elson excels in interviews, a new TV show, modeled after his famous 20th Century radio broadcasts, has been packaged for him.

Oh! We might mention Elson rejected the St. Louis offer. His automotive sponsor, aware of these traits, has renewed Elson's TV contract for two more years.

HULLABALOOS come and hullabaloos go, but the one about Arthur Godfrey and Julius La Rosa continues strong. King Artha's abrupt banishment of the popular baritone, along with orchestra leader Archie Bleyer, was a spark that touched off a nationwide conflagration late last month. Godfrey's comments to the press later about the pair stirred up more public reaction and kept the controversy at white heat.

The mail that bombarded TV GUIDE's offices in the following weeks was a good barometer of how the storm swept the Windy City. As might be expected, response has been both pro and con. The Godfrey camp contends that Arthur acted firmly but fairly while La Rosa fans assert that Julius was deposed most dictatorially. Herewith we present a sampling of mail showing how viewers reacted to that all-important question: "What did you think of Godfrey's sudden dismissal of La Rosa and Bleyer?"

Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Smith, Evanston, Ill.: I think many TV viewers feel as we do that Arthur Godfrey adopted a very high-handed manner in dealing with one of our national favorites, Julius La Rosa. It is apparent to us that what Godfrey demands of performers is not "humility" but "docility" and "servility."

Mrs. D. Bonheur, New Buffalo, Mich.: His undercover way of "adlibbing" his friends right off the air has cost Mr. Godfrey heavily. Today he no longer reigns as "King of the Round Table;" now he is "King of the Squares." I've often wished he'd bow out and let Robert Q. (Lewis) take over.

Mrs. G. Smith, Grand Rapids, Mich.: I think it's terrible the way people have been tearing down Mr. Godfrey. After all, if he hadn't started La Rosa and others off, they would never have had a chance. They should be very grateful and remember what they owe Godfrey.

Mrs. S. McCarthy, Chicago: Arthur should re-hire Julie La Rosa. He seemed to fit just right on the program. Now the Godfrey shows are dull, except for Marian Marlowe and Frank Parker.

Mrs. David Maxon, Capron, Ill.: After Godfrey's recent fandangos, we don't miss his program too much. We liked his cast but always thought Godfrey talked too much. Incidentally, we listen to Julius now on Toast of the Town, so things are looking up for him and us.

Robert Piehler, Chicago: You can sum it up like this—Julius apparently went ahead on his own, and that was contrary to the Godfrey policy. I favor A. G., and think he'll win out.

Eleanor Meyer, Chicago: I think Godfrey was right in what he did, but I didn't like his methods of doing it. He was a little too frank with the newspapers although he might have been pushed into it. I still believe in him.

Mrs. A. Roberts, Hammond, Ind.: It hurt me that Julius left Mr. Godfrey who gave him his start. I've heard that Arthur is hard to get along with. However, I don't think Julius has enough experience to go out on his own.

7 BOXING—St. Louis
Jesse Turner vs. Pierre Langlois, 10 rounds, middleweights.

JIMMY POWERS' RATING

	Rated	W.	L.	D.	KO's
Turner	15	33	11	5	18
Langlois	7	58	13	4	12

Turner, a real good club fighter, will be able to make a good showing before his hometown fans against the light-hitting Frenchman. Langlois is fast afoot and light of power, but his willingness to fight will make this a real slam-bang go. He lost a close go to Garth Panter in his last start, but that will give him the added incentive to give all in this bout to re-establish himself as a top contender. Langlois is the pick.

Channels 2 & 25, 6 pm • Channel 7, 9 pm • Channel 5, 10:15 pm

ETHEL MERMAN, making her first TV appearance since her smash-hit duet with Mary Martin on the Ford Anniversary Show, is just one of the features of this jumbo hour.

Produced by Rodgers & Hammerstein, Dinner With the President comes from the Grand Ballroom of the Mayflower Hotel in Washington, D. C., where a dinner on the occasion of the 40th anniversary of the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai Brith is being held. This program is a salute to the progress in human relations that has been made in this nation during the past 40 years.

Climax of the evening will come when President Eisenhower is presented with the League's annual American Democratic Legacy Award. He will speak for 10 minutes.

Before this point is reached, Helen Hayes, Rex Harrison, Lilli Palmer, Ben Grauer, and Walter Cronkite are scheduled to give the commentaries while, by means of movies and still photographs, the contributions of various prominent persons to democratic progress are shown.

Between times there will be entertainment by Eddie Fisher; Ball & Arnaz and their TV neighbors, Vivian Vance and Bill Frawley; Herb Shriner; Jane Froman; baritone William Warfield; and the aforementioned Ethel Merman. The associate producer will be Martin Manulis of Suspense. The director will be Byron Paul of This Is Show Business.

If Dinner With the President measures up to the occasion and the talent involved, it should be great.

7 DINNER WITH THE PRESIDENT
(For further details see p. A-29.)

9 BOXING—Eastern Parkway
Joey Giardello vs. Tuzo Portuguez, middleweights, 10 rounds.
JIMMY POWERS' RATING:

	Rated	W.	L.	D.	KO's
Giardello	6	45	11	5	14
Portuguez	12	53	14	5	23

Both of these boxers are well known to the Du Mont network fans. They have performed many times at the Eastern Parkway Club during the year. Giardello looked good defeating Walter Cartier at this Club on Oct. 26th to keep in serious contention for Bobo Olson's title. Joey has too many lefts for the aggressive Portuguez, and can more than hold his own at in fighting. Giardello should look good in winning.

8:45 7 PAUL HARVEY—Discussion

9:00 2 4 25 BOXING—Los Angeles
Eddie Chavez vs. Arthur King, 10 rounds, lightweights.

JIMMY POWERS' RATING:

	Rated	W.	L.	D.	KO's
Chavez	5	45	8	4	12
King	7	58	10	0	19

Neither boy is much of a puncher, but both have plenty on the ball in the brains department. Chavez, a West Coaster, has always been a pleasing performer before the California fans. King is a flat-footed boxer who keeps boring in with his right hand cocked as if to score a one-punch knockout. I'll string along with Chavez. The change in time and climate will have an affect on the Canadian King.

Make Room for Daddy

PROGRAM OF THE WEEK

THE Danny Thomas show is a sure winner on the new ABC fall line-up. Titled Make Room for Daddy, it's a pleasant heart-warming little affair about a night-club comedian trying to fit his family life into his life as an entertainer. In the capable hands of Thomas and a fine supporting cast, the show emerges as one of the better situation comedies on TV.

Thomas, of course, is the comedian who blasted TV at one time as being "only for idiots." This was after he had worked two seasons as one of the rotating stars on NBC's All Star Review. He later claimed this was all a mistake, and it's hoped that viewers will forgive him his transgressions. If they don't, they'll be missing a treat because, regardless of what he thinks of TV, his brand of comedy was designed for the medium.

His role on Daddy was tailored to his talents. He proved in his movies (I'll See You in My Dreams and The Jazz Singer) that he's a sensitive actor and his TV program gives him the maximum opportunity to display that facet of his personality. Although he does at least one floor-show routine in each program, it's the scenes with his family that he makes count. He's a near-perfect characterization of the father who cannot always top the wit and satire of his pretty wife and their two small fry.

Jean Hagen plays the wife, and matches Danny both in drawing laughs and heart-tugs. The two kids are great, cute but not precocious. Sherry Jackson plays the 11-year-old daughter, and Rusty Hamer is the six-year-old son. Other cast regulars add to the fun, including Ben Lessy, as Danny's piano player; Horace McMahon, as his agent; Phil Arnold, his tailor; Frank Jenks, his writer, and Sheldon Leonard, his masseur.

Danny Thomas and Jean Hagen: they came up with one of TV's better efforts.

Edward R. Murrow: a different format.

PERSON TO PERSON

EDWARD R. MURROW has done it again. After setting a new pattern for TV journalism with his See It Now show, he has established a completely new and different format for informal TV interviewing with his new Person to Person program (CBS). Whether he's chatting with a Government dignitary or an aspiring young actor from Greenwich Village, he makes viewers believe that they're actually sitting in on the interview.

Murrow interviews two people on the show each week, bringing viewers into their homes via an intricate system of live TV coverage. The cameras are in the homes of the subject, with Murrow sitting in a CBS studio in New York. Then, through a two-way communications setup, he can talk with them as though they were sitting across a table from him.

Aside from Murrow, the star of the show is television itself. Through no other medium would it be possible for viewers to witness this intimate tete-a-tete as it happens.

As an astute showman, Murrow varies his guests on each program. On the initial show he brought viewers into the plush Manhattan penthouse of Leopold Stokowski and his wife, Gloria Vanderbilt, and then into the more modest Long Island abode of Roy Campanella, the star Brooklyn Dodger catcher.

He has also interviewed such personages as James C. Petrillo, head of the musicians' union; a major book publisher; a famous woman dress designer; Earl Blaik, the Army's football coach, and Arthur Godfrey.—R.S.

FINE TUNING

By OLLIE CRAWFORD

NBC TELECASTS Opera Carmen in full color. Carmen uses every color except olive drab.

The high point was when the producer said to the director: "Little man, you've had a Bizet day."

The opera opens in a cigaret factory, where Carmen is in charge of the T (for Toreador) zone. There's a big fight because one of the girls says the cigarets aren't milder, much milder. This girl gets stabbed right in the middle of the first act. She only gets to sing one note in the opera, but it's a real loud one.

Carmen runs out and into a square, named Don Jose.

When the opera begins to slow down, they bring in the A & P Gypsies. Everybody gets as excited as if the guy in the blindfold test had picked the wrong brand.

They had to cut a couple of scenes, apparently including the one where the cigarets march.

Dumb Dora understood only one thing. When somebody yelled "Here comes the bull," she figured they meant the middle commercial.

THE MAN WITH THE VELVET WHIP

John Daly Keeps Everyone Happy

THE VILLAIN in a Boston Little Theater group's production of "Captain Applejack," a ripsnorting theatrical hit of the Twenties, stepped forward to deliver his big line. But something went wrong and the speech came out: "I've got you caught like a trap in a rat." Thus, for the time being, ended the acting career of a Boston lad named John Daly.

Many TV fans, basking in the glow given off by Mr. Daly as he moderates What's My Line? have doubtless come away with the notion that John is some sort of a cum laude graduate of a Manhattan charm school. These same people must have been at least mildly shocked when this same Mr. Daly recently was handed the job of vice-president and news chief for the entire ABC network. After all, the traditional concept of a newsman—bold, hard - boiled, stern - visaged—didn't seem to fit John at all.

Yet long before suave Mr. Daly became a moderator, he had established a solid reputation as one of radio's top men on a news story. Until he landed the ABC job, his wages as a newsgatherer had never approached the sums he pulls down as mother hen to a brood of panelists, yet there's little doubt that John still considers himself primarily as a newsman.

But ham will out, and it was the ham in John, harking back to his Boston fiasco, that got him out of news and into TV. When TV first came along, John decided he wanted in. Thus when he was given the opportunity to play Walter Burns, the violent editor, in the TV version of "Front Page," he jumped.

From then on, he grabbed every TV opportunity offered. After a stretch as a panelist on a show called Riddle

Me This, John latched on with the now celebrated but then unknown firm of Goodson and Todman. The boys were trying out a summer replacement and picked John as moderator. The show not only outlasted that summer (1949) but it has never been off the air since. It was What's My Line?, of course.

A Twist Of Luck

The chancy nature of John's emergence as a TV star was foreshadowed by an earlier twist of luck that got him into the news business. Two years after leaving Boston College, with an unsuccessful venture into the wool business behind him, John left Boston for both economic and romantic reasons. He was courting a young lady who lived in Washington, D. C. He found his finances in bad repair because he was shelling out $15 a week to commute to Washington. So he abandoned Boston, moved to Washington and later married the girl.

His first job in Washington was as a schedule engineer (he had majored in mathematics at Boston College), but an opportunity to fill in as a relief announcer on a Washington radio station was more than he could resist. Shortly thereafter, Bob Trout, an old Washington hand for CBS, was transferred to New York and John beat out several competitors for the job. He became the White House correspondent for CBS, and under the guidance of Al Warner, top man for CBS in Washington and a great man in John's eyes, he soon was rising in the ranks of radio's top newshawks.

International Travels

John became a standout correspondent. When Europe boiled up in 1937 he began a string of assignments topped by few living reporters: London in 1942, Algiers, Sicily, Italy, the Middle East, the conventions of 1940, 1944, and 1948, the Wendell Willkie tour, the Nuremburg trials, Task Force Frigid in Alaska and the Aleutians, the Berlin Airlift.

In 1949, John left CBS because his ventures into TV would be curtailed by his news duties. But he still speaks with great admiration of Ed Murrow and Paul White, the men who formed the great CBS news staff and provided him with his opportunity.

John's accent has been a source of some bafflement, because of its slight British flavor. This is easily explained. He was born in 1914 in Johannesburg, South Africa. His father was American and his mother British. They met in Denver but migrated to South Africa because of his father's job as geologist and mining engineer. When John was 11, his father died. He then took the long trek to Boston with his mother and from there went to New Hampshire, where he grew up. Hence his accent is flavored by vastly different environments.

Producer Mark Goodson once tagged John with the title "The Man With the Velvet Whip," out of respect for John's ability to keep down unruly panelists. Because of his great skill as a moderator, he's constantly approached by aspiring producers of panel shows who figure they can't miss with John aboard. He's turned down hundreds of them.

John now lives in a pleasant home in Westchester County. The pleasures of suburban life are such that John seldom lingers in Manhattan after his chores, but rushes home, like Mr. Average Man, to his family.

Goodson and Todman have recently come under fire because they are apparently bent on saturating television with panels. But John is glad to come to their defense. "They've always been square with me. I told them I wouldn't do any show that involved a giveaway, and they went right along with me," he said. "And when a big advertising agency tried to give me some trouble, they stood right behind me when it could have cost them a show. Sure, they've done some foolish things. But they've been fine with me."

John plays tennis and golf to keep fit.

No other show on television has come in for so many workouts from the gossip mongers, yet John has seldom come up when the rumors start swirling. Although his manner on the show sometimes becomes almost cloyingly gay, he still manages to stay in practically everybody's good graces. And complaints from fans rarely involve him. It seems that the velvet whip he wields over his panel works just as well on the public.

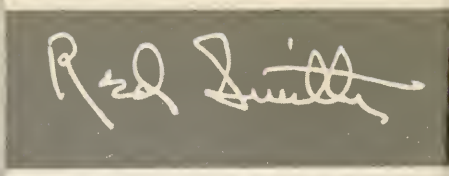
SPORTS



How to make friends . . . and enemies

ONCE a year, in connection with the National Collegiate Athletic Association's football television program, professional statisticians submit figures showing how the policy of restricted television has increased attendance at college games. Even where attendance has declined, the statisticians still manage to show increases, and if that seems a difficult feat, then you're not familiar with statistical researchers, who can do more things with figures than the whole girdle-and-bra industry.

A Sunday or so ago, the Los Angeles Rams played the Detroit Lions in a national football league game in Los Angeles. The professional game drew 93,751 customers. College football will see no such crowd until Army meets Navy in Philadelphia on Nov. 28, and although that game will be offered free on television, the chances are Municipal Stadium will be sold out, come rain, sleet, snow or murk of smoke from nearby city dumps.

Professional football exercises some controls with regard to television, also, but its policy is much more liberal than that of the NCAA. In the cities that hold National League franchises, there is a pro game on the screen every weekend.

If the local team is on the road, its game is telecast for the customers back home. But if the Eagles, say, are playing at home in Connie Mack Stadium on Sunday, some out-of-town game is telecast in Philadelphia on Saturday night. On Sunday, Philadelphia viewers are free to go out to Connie Mack Stadium.

The professionals do not appear to be suffering at the gate because of too much television. On the contrary, television is helping to keep the pro game in the public eye, with the result that attendance figures are following a normal, healthy curve based on the performance of the teams.

Before their meeting with Detroit, the Rams had won four games in five starts and were tied with the Lions for first place in the league's Western Conference.

On the same day, the New York Giants met the Cardinals in Chicago. They were bundling at the bottom of the Eastern Conference, New York having won once in five tries, the Cardinals having lost five straight. They drew 17,499—a highly satisfactory crowd in the circumstances.

Elsewhere around the league, crowds were just about what might be expected: 22,547 in Pittsburgh where the Eagles played the Steelers; 27,808 in enthusiastic San Francisco where the good Forty-Niners beat the bad Bears; 47,845 in Cleveland, home of the unbeaten Browns, Eastern Conference leaders.

Acknowledging the public's interest gratefully, professional football is making friends through television. Defying public preferences, college football is making enemies. It seems as simple as that.

IN THE CAST

Bambi Linn, Rod Alexander dance.

OLD pros of the theater insist that the best thing Rodgers & Hammerstein ever wrote was a glowing thing called Carousel. Among that show's many fine moments, one in particular is still the source of nostalgic sighs. It was an incomparably touching little dance performed on a barren stage by an ill-clad, barefoot little girl after her father, the hero, had died. The young lady who executed this wistful dance was a blithe youngster named Bambi Linn.

Eight years later, Bambi still has her dance bearings, but she no longer performs her enchantment solo. She has paired up with another buoyant youngster named Rod Alexander and also had the good sense to marry him. The two now can be seen lining out their dance sorcery on Your Show of Shows, apparently one of few programs on television where the shabby TV dancing cliches are avoided.

On Your Show of Shows, producer Max Liebman has encouraged them and given the team free rein to work out ideas. Bambi is duly appreciative: "He's the most reasonable man on earth. You have no idea how much it helps to work with a man who constantly strives for artistic betterment, yet never at the expense of anyone's personality."

Rod is the choreographer of the team, which is to say that he does the major part of the creation of their bright, inventive routines. Both of them are in love with dancing and spend most of their waking hours either creating, rehearsing or going to movies or Broadway musicals where they can watch others dance. Their own work is well thought of in the ballet world and among the Broadway mob and the TV public hasn't entered any dissenting argument either. Now in her mid-twenties, Bambi's whole life has been wrapped up in dancing—brother Ralph is now a featured dancer in Rodgers & Hammerstein's latest, "Me and Juliet"—but judging from the joy she brings to it, that's nice living.

Gentle June Byers, world's champ, using 'body breaker.'

DRAMATIC STARS:

THE LADIES WHO GRAPPLE FOR DIAMONDS AND SUCH

THE impression clings in the minds of some TV viewers that the women who sit at ringside at wrestling exhibitions are suited to model butchers' aprons. Is there a psychiatrist in the house?

"I can explain," volunteers Ruffy Silverstein, one of the many erudite men on the present-day mat. "When women ringsiders implore one wrestler to tear another's arm off, they mean something else.

"Very often the explanation is quite simple. A woman has a particularly heated argument with her husband. She gets the last word in but she's still sizzling when she bangs the front door and takes off to join her girl friends at the wrestling matches.

"Something about one of the wrestlers reminds her of her spouse. He becomes the target of her abuse."

Explanation accepted. Next question: What makes a woman become a wrestler?

"I can answer that one," states Joyce Ford, a Texas lass who switched from riding broncos and brahmas to throwing wrestlers on their feminine coiffures.

"I was in line outside the wrestling arena in Dallas when the most gorgeous doll I ever saw drove up in a $5000 automobile. What was she wearing? Among other things a lot of stunning diamonds."

The doll, of course, was Nell Stewart. Alongside Nell, Betty Grable is a charwoman. Marilyn Monroe is . . . is, after all, Marilyn Monroe.

"I met Nell after her bout," relates Miss Ford. "When I found out she got her diamonds, worth $40,000, and the car out of wrestling, I said, 'that's for me.' "

Daddy Supplied The Nose

Still in the process of developing into a bright-light attraction, Joyce has a modest but growing collection of diamonds and a hankering for a Lincoln Capri. She also has a cute new nose. The old one was splattered by an accurate elbow three years ago in Dayton. Her new breathing vessel was a family gift. It was remade by her father, a plastic surgeon at New York's Bellevue Hospital.

The elite among lady wrestlers belong in the $25,000 to $40,000 income bracket. Joyce hopes to reach that estate. She needs a gimmick to speed her progress. Reluctantly we report she rejected our suggestions that (1) she impersonate Gorgeous George's impersonation of a woman and (2) she slink out of her robe while the loud speaker plays A Pretty Girl Is Like A Melody.

Girl wrestlers have their problems. They are constantly on the search for good hairdressers to restore hairdos that get ruffled on the mat. They are annoyed by stage-door Johnnies and pelted with letters of marriage proposals. And that brings to mind another matter.

Call Of The Dollar

"Certainly I think marriage is a worthwhile institution," says Louise Green, the Lena Horne of the mat. "But I've grown accustomed to a certain standard of income. I don't know any men who can provide as well for me as I can for myself."

The problem is even more acute for Mary Horton, a college graduate who is shaped more along the lines of Ethel Waters. Mary majored in criminology and psychology at St. Mary's

Blonde Nell Stewart grinning happily as she twists Violet Viann's leg

. . . then joyfully slams an elbow into the brunette's face . . .

. . . and takes a kick. What for? Well, she has $40,000 in gems.

Of The Springs, Columbus, O. Her analysis of a man probes deeper than his bank balance. Her findings have been disappointing.

A Crusader's Purpose

Miss Green came into wrestling by fulfilling a dare. Her brother put her up to it and thus the ranks of practical nurses were depleted. Miss Horton entered the sport as a crusader. Her purpose is to further attract attention to the fact that a woman can be as useful as a man.

Available evidence indicates wrestling is no more injurious to a woman's health than gymnastics, ballet or aerial acrobatics. There is little strain, for wrestlers are taught to cooperate when a lifting hold is applied. Occasionally some one who is poorly coordinated requires longer training in the gym.

Generally this applies to a man. One noteworthy example, former heavyweight boxing champion Primo Carnera, instinctively stiffened at the moment he was intended to become airborne, according to a matman who took his basic gym training at the same time as the human leaning tower of Pizza.

While women are more graceful than men, occasionally one accidentally alters the shape of her ring companion's nose or, almost as bad, elbows out an incisor. A man accepts such fate with a shrug, a sigh and an aspirin. But not women.

Unfortunately, arenas were built before women invaded wrestling. Consequently, at most places, all of the women on a show must share a single dressing room. When a mishap occurs in one of their matches, the real battle begins when they return to the privacy of the dressing room.

Cherchez La Femme

Anyone physically fit and athletically able, man or woman, may become a wrestler without enclosing any box tops or filling in the last line of a limerick. Simply make your intentions known to any wrestlers' booking office.

There are four prominent agencies for girls, among them the Women's Wrestling Enterprise. According to Ruffy Silverstein's count, there are at least 50 booking sources for men.

"And no chains bind you to any one," points out Ruffy. "What other sport offers complete freedom? Baseball players are bought and sold like cattle. Whenever a wrestler wants to change booking offices, he (or she) is free to do so."

No Quarrel With TV

Television, however, presents a fresh problem to Ruffy, the well-informed Illinois three-time National Collegiate AA champion whose lone departure from wrestling came in World War Two, and some of his associates. He has no quarrel with TV. Nor is he displeased with the manner in which Wayne Griffin, the favorite of many wrestlers, and Russ Davis describe the matches.

Certainly no harm is done when the able Davis, describing a head hold, admonishes the applier with: "It won't come apart—no dotted lines."

Dan Jenkins reports:

BING CROSBY's first TV show has been switched from Dec. 27 to Jan. 3. It will be a variety format, with JACK BENNY as the guest star. CROSBY's second, and last, show for the season will be done some time in March. Filming on the first one starts around Dec. 1 . . . BENNY, an active man, also is being urged to do an hour-long version of "The Horn Blows At Midnight" for CBS-TV's Omnibus. He's thinking hard about it.

Revlon, dropping its Mirror Theater series on CBS effective Dec. 12, has bought the Mr. and Mrs. North series to start on NBC Jan. 26 in the 10:30-11 P.M. Tuesday spot . . . ALAN YOUNG has signed to do a one-shot film for the GE Theater. He is hopeful that it will stack up as the forerunner of a new series of his own . . . BRIAN DONLEVY will be EDDIE CANTOR's guest on the Nov. 29 Comedy Hour . . . Plans are afoot to bring Mama to the coast for two live shows, one from San Francisco, one from here.

The MARTIN & LEWIS-ABBOTT & COSTELLO feud (the boys hadn't been speaking for years) came to a happy end when the former pair took over a portion of the Nov. 1 Comedy Hour to pinch hit for the ailing LOU COSTELLO. It's now a love feast . . . JACK BENNY in the news again with confirmed reports that he may originate one of his TV shows from Kansas City to accommodate a guest star, name of HARRY TRUMAN. TRUMAN, however, will not(repeat)not play the piano. With MARGARET under contract to NBC, that leaves it up to ABC to get MRS. TRUMAN.

GROUCHO MARX, now in N. Y., may follow his Nov. 16 ARTHUR MURRAY guest spot with appearances on other shows, and may then go on to Paris. He's a month ahead on the filming of his own You Bet Your Life . . . A writer who claims he should be cut in on the DANNY THOMAS show is suing THOMAS for $1,000,000 to prove his point. With one more open date left on the Comedy Hour schedule, latest rumor has MAE WEST filling it.

A 90-minute version of Victory At Sea is being put together for theatrical release in April . . . FRED CLARK, the former "Harry Morton" of the Burns & Allen show, and his wife, BENAY VENUTA, are being considered by ABC for a new husband-and-wife show . . . No money in TV? LASSIE will make more in three years on TV than the $262,000 he made in seven years with MGM . . . RANDY STUART set to appear in two of three half-hour JOHN STEINBECK films being made for Omnibus. LEW AYRES makes his TV bow in the third one.

HUMPHREY BOGART has been quoted as saying he will produce and star with his wife, LAUREN BACALL, in their own film series sometime next year . . . LILLI PALMER and REX HARRISON, still another family team, are being sought for TV's version of The Halls of Ivy . . . WAYNE MORRIS has started production of his Junior Ages film series.
